Food for Thought Ethics Series

The Challenges of Bullying: What can Law Firms learn from the Raab Report?

Tuesday 21st November 2023, 6.30pm

Kingsley Napley, 20 Bonhill Street, EC2A 4DN

The City of London Solicitors' Company will shortly be holding the next in its 'Food for Thought' series of discussions regarding matters of ethics. This time we will be facilitating a conversation on the challenges of bullying and looking at what Law Firms can learn from the Raab Report.

To help us consider this complex topic, we have assembled an expert panel of speakers with diverse perspectives on the issues.

Our Panel of Speakers:

- Adam Tolley KC, Fountain Court Chambers - appointed by the Prime Minister to investigate conduct complaints made against the Rt Hon Dominic Raab MP. Adam has recently been shortlisted for Senior Counsel of the Year at the International Employment Lawyer ('IEL') Awards 2023 (the IEL's first annual awards ceremony). Specifically, the shortlisting recognizes Adam's investigation into bullying at the Ministry of Justice.
- John Bowers KC, Principal of Brasenose College, Oxford University, Deputy High Court Judge and Recorder. He practised primarily in employment law and human rights, acted in most of the major industrial disputes over the past decades and is an approved counsel for the Equality and Human Rights Commission.
- Iain Miller, Partner of Kingsley Napley LLP, and General Editor of Cordery. Iain specialises in legal ethics, investigations, and public law matters and has acted in many of the leading cases relating to the regulation of lawyers in England and Wales.

The panel session will be chaired by Clare Wilson, General Counsel of Herbert Smith Freehills LLP.

Location: The event will be held on Tuesday 21st November 2023 at Kingsley Napley's London office at 20 Bonhill Street, London EC2A 4DN.

Time: Registration will be from 6.00pm and the panel session will commence at 6.30pm.

There will be a Post Panel networking session with wine and soft drinks available courtesy of Kingsley Napley LLP.

All members of the Company and CLLS are welcome to attend. Tickets for the event are free but you will need to book to ensure your name is on the attendee list for security reasons.
